SUMMER 2021

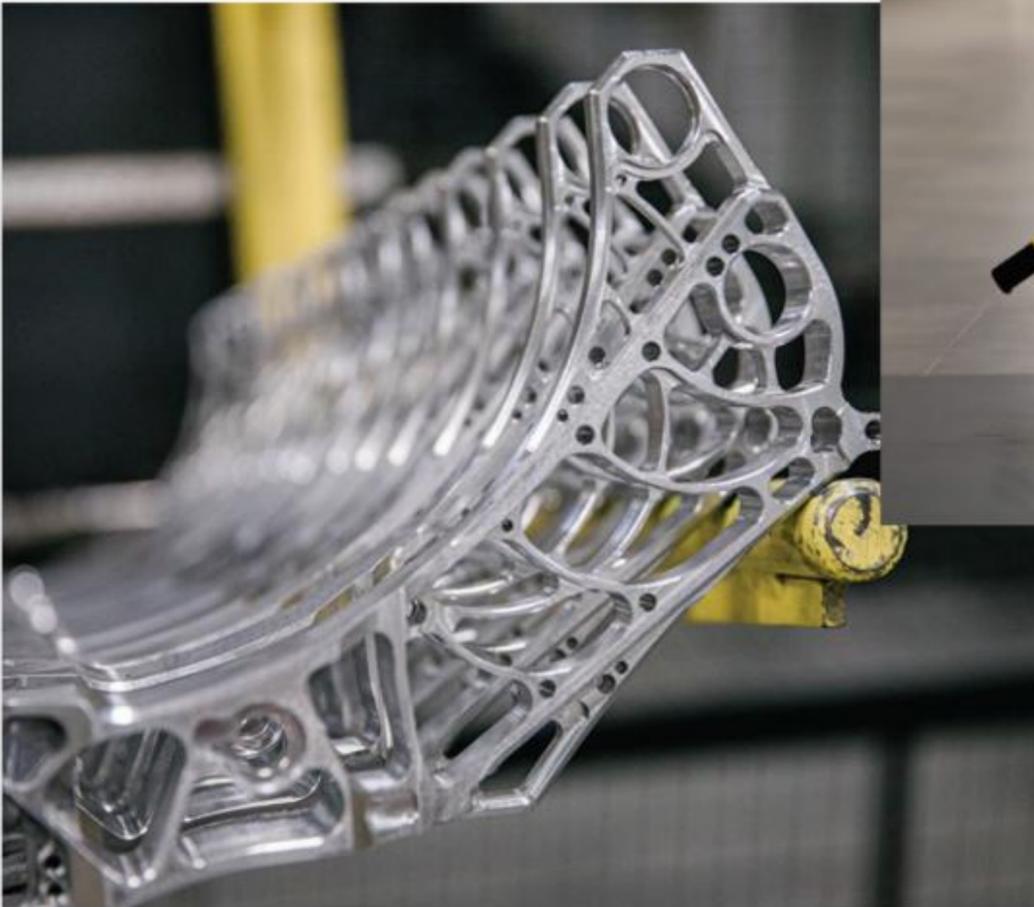

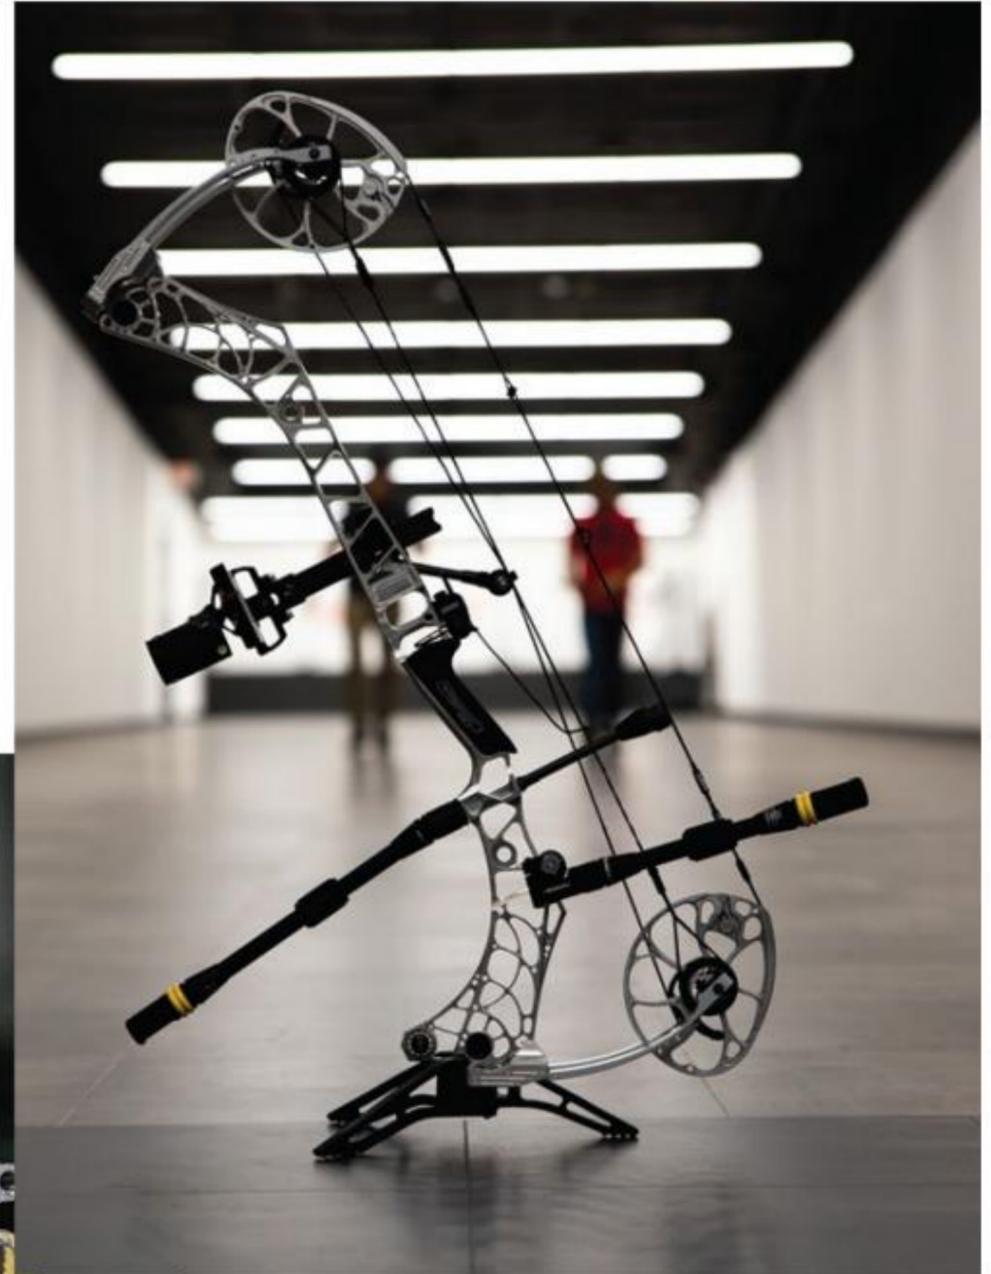

ELEVATING THE ARCHERY EXPERIENCE.

| WE BELIEVE IN ARCHERY – THE EFFORT IT
REQUIRES, THE SKILL IT DEMANDS, THE PASSION
IT IGNITES. IT SERVES AS AN ESCAPE FROM THE RIGORS OF MODERN LIFE AND FULFILLS OUR UNRELENTING QUEST FOR ADVENTURE.
THROUGH THE PRODUCTS WE DEVELOP,
THE SERVICE WE PROVIDE AND THE STORIES
WE TELL, OUR DRIVING FORCE IS TO ENHANCE
EVERY ASPECT OF THE ARCHERY EXPERIENCE.

BEHIND THE BOWS.

Before our bows ever make their way to a showroom floor, they get sent through the gauntlet. After thousands of hours of in-house testing and analysis, each and every platform we create is rigorously tested in the field. No new product is cleared for production without.

Our team is made up of the most dedicated archers we know. Each team member is given one rule when we hand them the newest model: Beat it up. From the mountains of the Northwest Territories to the deserts of Nevada, by the end of our Proving Ground testing period we can say with absolute confidence that we know how your bow will perform. We never test our product on customers. ■

BORN IN OUR LAB,

PROVEN IN THE FIELD.

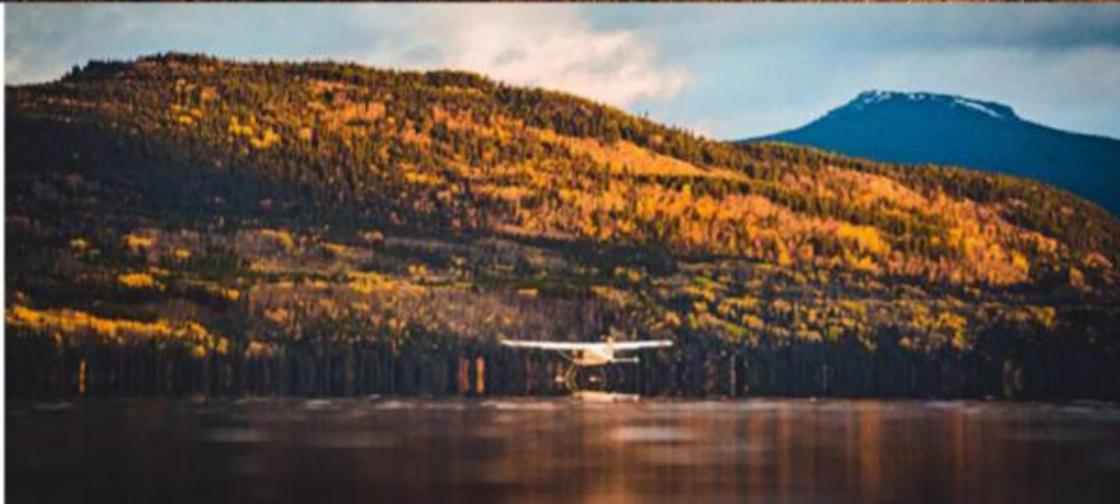

BUILT READY.

MOTHER NATURE CAN BE UNPREDICTABLE. WHATEVER THE ELEMENTS, OUR BOWS ARE BUILT TO PERFORM. THEY'VE NEVER MET A SITUATION THEY CAN'T HANDLE.

I find myself fortunate to wander the mountains of British Columbia every year, often with a bow or camera in hand – sometimes both. What I’m searching for I don’t totally know, and though “adventure” seems too cliché, it’s the best word that loosely defines a low, throbbing push to “go.”

Looking back at the season, I’m reminded how the beauty of bowhunting, for me at least, is the places it takes me. This year, the V3 rode patiently on my pack from moose willows to the snow-dusted peaks of sheep country – and more than a few side valleys and bushwhacks in between. I’ll remember the smoke from a hot campfire after a long day. Wild animals going about their natural behaviors, crouched by close enough to hear their breath. The sunsets, sunrises and snowstorms from what felt like the top of the world. These are the moments that will remain chiseled in memory.

LONG STORY SHORT.

Coming in at 27" axle-to-axle for ultimate agility in tight spaces, the V3 27 is our most compact bow to date. The V3 features our longest riser to ATA ratio to date giving hunters a maneuverable bow without sacrificing industry-leading accuracy. The new patent-pending Centerguard Cable Containment provides optimal cam timing while the all-new Nano 740 damper enhances vibration control, resulting in a stealthy, agile hunting bow that has never met a situation it can't handle.

HARVEST REPORT.

Each year, Team Shooter Brett Seng is among the first to take our newest platform and hit the hills. This past season, the V3 took him to the mountains of Utah in search of a worthy opponent. On day nine, his arrow met its mark, making his high country mule deer the first harvest with the 2021 V3.

“ I am absolutely in love with the Prima. I've shot a lot of different bows over the years and it makes a huge difference shooting something that was built specifically for women. ISLAND ORGANICS

📷 Photography: JOE SIR Story by: REMI WARREN

When it comes to the best wild meat, Axis deer is a top contender. It has a very mild but flavorful taste, similar to elk. Native to India, these deer have been introduced to many areas around the world including Texas, Queensland Australia, and Hawaii, where huntable free ranging populations are found.

Axis deer reproduce quickly and can be found in large herds. Sometimes upwards of a few hundred or more will be in a single group. While this is great for the deer population, it can be tough on the fragile ecosystems where they have been introduced. Hunting is a great tool for managing this population.

After the deer and elk season has died down in the west, I make an annual trip to the Hawaiian Islands in the spring to fill my freezer with some of this incredible wild meat. For me it is more than just an opportunity to get some steaks, it is a chance to take my bow out and test my skills getting close to an extremely wary animal. It is also a chance to visit family and catch up with my grandma who resides on the island. As well as a great opportunity to get out into the field with good friends, the warm weather and beach is not half bad either!

While axis deer can breed any time of year, most of the deer tend to rut in June. I am mostly hunting earlier in the year when the majority of bucks have shed their antlers or are just starting to grow out. This is more a matter of timing for me, as the excitement of chasing a screaming axis buck is akin to chasing elk through the mountains in September. In the time when antlered bucks are scarce, I like to target does to help control the population and bring what I believe to be the best venison on the planet back home. ■

FOR ME IT IS MORE THAN JUST AN OPPORTUNITY TO GET SOME STEAKS, IT IS A CHANCE TO TAKE MY BOW OUT AND TEST MY SKILLS GETTING CLOSE TO AN EXTREMELY WARY ANIMAL.

THIS IS ONE OF MY FAVORITE WAYS TO PREPARE AXIS DEER VENISON. THIS RECIPE IS BY NO MEANS ONLY FOR AXIS DEER AND CAN EASILY BE USED ON MULE DEER, WHITETAIL, OR ANTELOPE.

Axis Deer Garlic & Rosemary Roasted Frenched Rack

INGREDIENTS:

Start with a Frenched venison backstrap. This is a backstrap with the rib bone left connected to the strap and the meat trimmed away from the bone for presentation.

- | | |
|--------------------------------|----------------------------------|
| ½ of a frenched deer backstrap | 3 stems rosemary |
| ¼ cup olive oil | 1 teaspoon freshly ground pepper |
| 8-10 cloves of garlic | 1 ½ teaspoons course ground salt |

DIRECTIONS:

Combine garlic, rosemary and olive oil in food processor and blend. Coat both sides of the roast with the mixture and hit with freshly ground pepper and salt. Let roast rest for 1-2 hours in the refrigerator.

Preheat oven to 450 degrees.

Sear Rack in hot skillet to brown then coat with remaining garlic mixture.

Cook in oven for 7-15 minutes or until the internal temperature reaches 125 degrees. Once it hits 125 degrees, take out and tent with foil allowing to rest for 5 minutes.

Finally, slice between ribs and serve as a whole chop.
